For young learners, Science is just an extension of their everyday world. We don't have to teach our students how to wonder, discover, and explore because they do it naturally. With the aim of testing their scientific mind sets and analysing their reasoning and analytical skills, we organised a Science Quiz for them. The Agni House won the quiz.

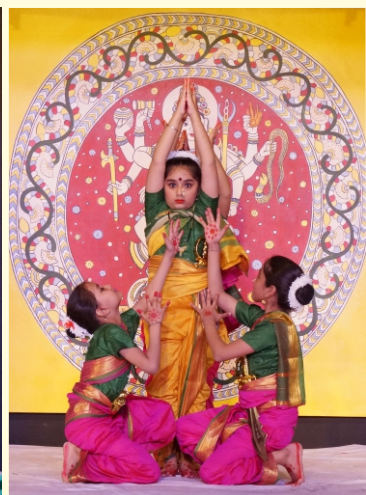

Mind Tree School, Ambala City campus draped the veil of aesthetic beauty and transformed itself into an ancient sanctuary of beautiful art and culture to celebrate its Annual Day. Our adroit and dexterous artists from the art department created awe-inspiring stage setup and breathtaking outdoor decor bespeaking the ancient Indian art forms like Kalamkari and Warli. The invitation card, drawn in folk art, displayed the Omkar with nine animals depicting the nine emotions or 'Navarasa' which was the theme of this year's Annual Day Celebration.

Navarasa or Nine Emotions are derived from human emotions and feelings as mentioned in the ancient Sanskrit text 'Natyashastra' attributed to sage 'Bharata Muni'. According to the Rasa theory of the Natyashastra, entertainment is a desired effect of performing arts but not the primary goal. The primary goal of theatre and drama is to transport the audience to another parallel reality, full of wonder and bliss. The theme was presented by our students through a series of skits, dances and narratives. Mind Tree takes pride in the real heroes of our school, our students, who follow their passion and enthusiasm and work hard to present their acts, overcoming all their inhibitions and fears.
